In My Life

Six decades of tunes

David Gordon

Singer/Guitarist/Storyteller

Sunday, October 6, 2019 at 3:30pm

Music Hall, Monterey Peninsula College, Monterey CA

David Gordon first strummed a guitar in 1959, and he's been learning songs ever since. Lots and lots of songs. Now he's put together a personal retrospective of his favorite tunes from his (nearly) 60 years of singing for audiences. It's called In My Life.

The playlist for this concert will include music and words by Lennon & McCartney, Tom Paxton, Kate Wolf, Robert W. Service, John McCutcheon, David Wilcox, Jacques Offenbach, Hoagy Carmichael, Stephen Foster, Iris DeMent, Ruggero Leoncavallo, Marty Robbins, a medieval French troubadour, and a few more. Yes, all of that crazy variety in 90 heart-filled minutes.

In his concerts with guitar David draws on his lifelong love of traditional and contemporary acoustic music. With a rich and sensitive voice and a keen sense of drama, he interweaves songs of love, compassion, and laughter with stories, poetry, musings, and his own uniquely goofy brand of humor. Throughout his life, David's intention has been to open hearts through song and story, and share with his listeners the power of words and music and the joys of living and love.

About David

The Washington Post has called David Gordon "a model of style and charm and an irresistible performer." He's a life-long troubadour whose compelling voice, keen sense of drama, and offbeat humor have charmed audiences worldwide.

His international performing career reaches from Bach to country music, from grand opera to jazz, from Mozart to Fats Waller.

David began performing with acoustic guitar in the early 1960s and never stopped, despite a four-decade detour into classical music. Throughout his international opera and concert career, David has enjoyed a parallel life as a self-accompanied solo musician. He's especially known for his narrated programs of thought-provoking and uplifting songs from more than a century of great songwriters.
